Lessons Learned from New York's Second Cybersecurity Action

The New York Department of Financial Services (NYDFS) has announced its second regulatory enforcement action against a regulated entity (a New York licensed mortgage banker and loan servicer) for violating NYDFS's Cybersecurity Regulations. The action involved the mortgage banker's failure to report a data breach – a breach caused by an employee overriding the company's multi-factor authentication (MFA) protocol – enabling intruder access. The company agreed to pay a $1.5 million fine and take several actions to bolster its cyber risk and assessment practices.

FTC Says that One Cannot Retain the Fruit of the Tainted Tree

Setting new precedent in the world of data, the FTC has found that the work product of ill-gotten data is no longer retainable by the developer. On January 11, 2021, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC) announced that it reached a settlement in its enforcement action against Everalbum, Inc. In particular, and in addition to requirements commonly seen in other FTC settlements (including broad notice, consent, and deletion requirements), t...

CPRA Digest - New Consumer Rights under CPRA and What That Means for Your Business

On November 3, 2020, Californians voted to pass Proposition 24, expanding and modifying the California Consumer Privacy Act ("CCPA"), which came into force on January 1, 2020. The new California Privacy Rights Act ("CPRA") supersedes the CCPA and will be fully operative on January 1, 2023 (with a look-back period starting January 1, 2022). Until that time, the CCPA as written and amended generally remains in effect. As we learned during the lead up to the CCPA, the time period to prepare for this type of comprehensive and complex legislation passes quickly, and businesses should begin their CPRA preparations sooner rather than later. In this installment of the CPRA Digest, we discuss the expanded and new consumer rights under the CPRA, and the implications for organizations anticipating the CPRA.
